KING EDWARD VII CORONATION MEDAL - 1902

TERMS

The list of those awarded the medal is similar to that for the Queen Victoria Diamond Jubilee Medal. The coronation was postponed from 26 June 1902 until 9 August 1902 because of the King's illness but the medal bears the original date. A Canadian contingent of 606 went over for the coronation in June but was recalled due to the delay and only 1 Officer (LCol R. Turner, VC, DSO) and 13 other ranks took part in the eventual coronation ceremonies. There was no bar to the medal.

DESCRIPTION

A circular, 32-mm in diameter, medal in silver or bronze, with a raised and ornamented rim in the form of a wreath of laurel banded by ribbon. The medal is surmounted by an Imperial Crown giving an oval appearance. From the top of the crown to the bottom the medal measures 38-mm.

OBVERSE

The obverse bears no legend and displays the raised, conjoint effigies of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra, crowned and robed and facing left.

REVERSE

The reverse shows the Royal Cypher ERVII in large script, surmounted by a crown and the date 26 June 1902 below.

MOUNTING

A ring attaches 3-mm below the top of the crown.

RIBBON

The dark blue ribbon is 32-mm wide, with narrow white edges (2-mm wide) and a central scarlet stripe (7-mm wide).

ISSUED

There were 26 silver and 621 bronze medals issued to the Canadian Military. Two silver and 23 bronze Coronation Medals were awarded to the Canadian Scouts while in Britain. Three bronze medals, for men absent when the presentation was made, were returned to the War Office and given to an officer for distribution in Canada. The three medals were for 3559 Ferguson, 412 Bourke [sic] and 241 Shannon. Ferguson, and Burke are on the Nominal Roll and Queen's South Africa Medal at Kew. No trace can be found of Shannon.

An additional 25 silver and 608 bronze medals were received for distribution in Canada based on the number in the Canadian contingent for the June coronation date. These were distributed to approximately 1 officer and 30 other ranks in each military district in Canada. Other prominent Canadian politicians and citizens probably also received the medal but the total is unknown.
